【これは、夏休みの思い出というテーマでAiが9月に学校で発表した内容です。】

Today I'll talk about my experience I had this summer. In the middle of last month, my sister Mana and I went to our grandparents' house in Tokushima. We traveled without our parents! Mana is younger than me by five and only seven years old now. I got a little nervous on the way, but really relieved when I found Grandma at the airport!

I had a wonderful time there. Grandpa and our cousin Ken, who lives with our grandparents, took us to the river. Its water was so clean that we could see a lot of fish. I really enjoyed myself, but Mana didn't. She cannot swim and is even afraid to put her face in the water.

Now she really wants to learn how to swim. Our parents have started to look for a swimming school which Mana can go to after school. I hope to visit the river again and make happy memories with Mana next summer.

次の英文を読んで後の問いに答えなさい。

Who speaks English in the world? The Americans? Yes. The English? Yes. About 400 million people speak English as* their first language. The Canadians, the Australians and the New Zealanders speak the same language too.

There are much more people who speak English as their second language. Take the Indians, for instance. In India there are about 1,300,000,000 people and about 1,600 languages are used. There are so many different languages that they cannot communicate with each other in their own languages. Their official language* is Hindu*, but at the same time English is also used for their daily communication. In many countries which were ruled by England in the 19th and 20th centuries, they still use English as their common language, like in Singapore, Malaysia and so on.

What is more, in many other countries people speak their own language and don't speak English in their daily life. However, even in those countries students learn the foreign language at school and sometimes use it at work. One good example is Japan. We don't have to speak English and many of us can live without using it. However, as globalization* develops, more foreigners visit Japan. We will have to speak English with Chinese tourists. On the other hand, more Japanese companies send their workers abroad or have workers from other countries. Moreover some Japanese companies have started to use English as their official language. In such places Japanese workers must attend English meetings and speak English not only with foreign workers but also with Japanese staff.

Today we can say English is not the language of native speakers alone. It is the language for people all over the world. They use English with people who speak different languages. There are more non-native speakers of English than those who speak English as their first language. In the future you will have more chances to speak English, especially with people who speak English as their second or third language. When you enter Caritas

English will be one of the subjects you will learn. We hope you will enjoy English class and make your world larger and better.

*as : ～として *official language : 公用語 *Hindu : ヒンズー語
*globalization : グローバル化
